About the Property

Cape May Point jewel box! This house, completely rebuilt in 2006, offers both charm and practicality. The house was reimagined with contemporary living in mind and has been outfitted to make it weather resistant and efficient to run. Hardie board siding and Azek trim, 40 year architectural shingles, shear wall construction and steel tied pilings set in concrete all safeguard the house from the elements. Break-away walls around the foundation protect the main structure from water and wind pressure. Central heating and cooling are delivered by a geothermal below ground, closed-loop system. This system is efficient, economical, and sustainable. There is also a pretty and practical shed in the backyard with electrical service and attached outside shower, as well as a stone patio and artful b ...
